The home environment will need to be assessed by the Wheelchair and Posture Service.
- 3.13. The Wheelchair and Posture Service will only provide equipment to children who are unable to demonstrate good sitting posture (good sitting posture means that they are able to sit unaided with their pelvis and spine aligned and have good head control and who do not need to rely on their hands to maintain their posture). 6. MEETING SERVICE USER NEEDS

CLINICAL NEEDS

6.1. The decision in terms of which wheelchair to prescribe initially rests with the assessment in terms of whether or not the service user has the ability to self-propel.

6.2. Service user's needs must be considered on an individual case by case basis.

6.3. The length of time the service user spends in their wheelchair will determine what type of 'pressure cushion and postural support is required. The seating and cushioning provided 'will ensure that the service user does not suffer any secondary medical complications.

- 6.4. 'Adaptions will only be made to wheelchairs in order to ensure clinical appropriateness
- 6.5. 'The referrer must consider the need to promote independence when requesting the type 'of wheelchair to be provided. The wheelchair must achieve maximum self-reliance and 'independence for the service user.
- 6.6. It must be recognised that service users' needs may change and re-assessments must be conducted for service users that are likely to have a change in their condition, for example, service users who suffer from neurological deteriorating conditions, such as muscular dystrophy.
- 6.7. Special buggies and/or special seating can be issued to children who have not yet demonstrated good sitting posture (good sitting posture means that they are able to sit unaided with their pelvis and spine aligned and have good head control and who do not need to rely on their hands to maintain their posture). Seating units will be issued after assessment, together with the child's therapist and carer. This must be part of a 24 hour postural management programme.

ESSENTIAL ACTIVITIES OF DAILY LIVING

- 6.8. The assessment of the service user must incorporate the essential activities of daily living needs and these must be accommodated in terms of ensuring that the service user is able to remain as independent as possible.
- 6.9. The service user's environment must be considered as part of the assessment to ensure that they have the ability to move around their accommodation.

ABILITY TO USE WHEELCHAIR SAFELY

- 6.10. In the event a manual wheelchair is required, the requirements of the carer must be considered. Where there are concerns the Wheelchair and Posture Service reserves the right to seek consent to contact the carer's GP. A lightweight wheelchair may be issued in exceptional cases where this is an identified need for the carer.
- 6.11. The wheelchair supplied must be appropriate to the service user's environment, allowing the service user to use, or operate, the wheelchair safely in their home. This must for part of the assessment.
